REFINE SOY OIL

SPOT MARKETS

A combination of factors marked soy oil futures bullish on CBOT on Tuesday and it gained strong on soy oil futures. Domestic market followed the development in overseas market and effect is easy visualized in Mumbai, which gained easy access to reach high in soy oil spot prices. The CIF rate of soy oil also jumped witnessed some improvement in Chennai Market on costlier landing of imported oil and gained in Mumbai market as stated. High buying on CBOT also induced strong gained on palm oil futures on Bursa Malaysian Derivatives. The overall positive effect of these markets negotiated low demand in rest of locations nationwide and bound soy oil price at range bound. Today arrival pressure in major producing states decline in addition of low demand and sufficient buying of soybean seed at previous price dampen any movement in price in these location. The CIF rate for refined soy oil for September-January shipment jumped to at $607 on Wednesday. The more positive development in overseas market with emergence of dormant demand in expected in near term.

FUTURES MARKETS:

Soy oil sentiments at the futures market traded downward following a higher opening. Some selling interest among the investors pressurized the futures. The steady to weak spot prices is also underpinning the tone. Most active November contract settled slight down Rs.0.65 at Rs.417.70 and hovered within the range of Rs.417.50-420.30.
