

Wheat Domestic Fundamentals:

- Mixed sentiments reported from major key spot markets.
- Feed millers have shifted to maize due to lower price and better availability in the major producing price, however maize price started firming up and it may support wheat price once again in near term.
- According to traders, latest release for Auction in M.P has been already purchased by South Indian millers and Local traders as parity is in favor of traders/millers from M.P. and other centers like Rajasthan and Gujarat higher prices are restricting common trading activity in local market.
- No major price movement was recorded at key spot market as market seems to consolidate any major dip is likely as fresh buying at lower level will support price.
- Supply pressure from government stock is likely to continue and market is likely to trade steady to low. Millers have already fulfilled their immediate requirement through tenders in various states and it will continue to pressurize market in near term. However fresh enquiry from exporters as well as firm international prices may support cash wheat market at lower level. So any major dip is unlikely.

International Market Update:

- Indonesia the largest wheat importer in South East Asia has become the first nation to purchase more than 4 million tonnes of wheat in a year. According to analyst Australia has 70% market share in Indonesia.
- Russian Winter wheat crop might be affected by coldest winters in 20 years as it might affect wheat crop which was already affected by dry weather.
- Indonesia has imposed 20% tariff on wheat flour import for next 200 days to protect its domestic flour millers from foreign imports in to Indonesia. Indonesia is the largest South East Asia importer, importing about 6 million tonnes of Wheat every year. Turkey is the largest wheat flour exporter having about 60% market share in wheat flour imports.

Domestic market Outlook: We expect wheat Cash and future market to trade steady to weak due to increased supply under OMSS-D bulk users will restrict uptrend.
