Argentina's soybean production for the 2022/23 season has been reduced for the third consecutive month due to hot and dry weather, which is causing stress to the crop in vital growing regions. This month, the production has decreased by 8.0 million tons to a 14-year low of 33.0 million. Additionally, the crush forecast is anticipated to be at the lowest level in more than ten years. The declining supplies and crush in Argentina will have an impact on the global trade of soybeans, protein meal, and vegetable oils in the forthcoming months.

To counterbalance the limited domestic soybean supplies, Argentina is expected to reach a record high of 7.3 million tons of imports (Oct-Sep). The importers in Argentina are anticipated to take advantage of the record Brazilian crop and the recovery in Paraguay's production to supplement the weak domestic crop. Therefore, Argentina is expected to have the second-largest increase in soybean import growth in 2022/23, following China.

The soybean crop in Brazil was 43% harvested as of late last week compared to 54.6% last year and 46.6% average according to AgRural. This represents an advance of 10% for the week. Mato Grosso leads the way with 88% harvested while Parana remains slow at 17% harvested. Open weather in Mato Grosso, Goias, Minas Gerais, Bahia, Tocantins and should allow for a quick harvest pace.

Global oilseed production is lowered 7 million tons to 630 million predominantly on large reductions to Argentina soybean and sunflower seed and India cottonseed crops.

- In Rajasthan, RM seed went marginally down by 0.45% to INR 5,550/Qtl. All India arrivals clocked to 13 lakh bags while In Rajasthan arrivals recorded at 6.5 Lakh bags.

- It is expected that prices are likely to remain bearish in the next 3-4 weeks of March. However, there might be a rebound in the last week of March as NAFED begins to procure the new mustard crop and shrink in arrivals. Additionally, the TRQ on the import of crude soy oil and crude sunflower oil will expire on March 31st, leading to the implementation of a 5.5% import duty on these products.
