

Domestic & International Market Highlights:

- Many traders believe that after sugar and wheat, there might be export restrictions for rice. It is expected that the export quota will be pegged at 10 MMT. But from our analysis, it is unlikely that there will be any export restriction as the stocks within the government is huge.
- Due to increased inflation in Mexico, the government is trying to suspend the import tariff for paddy and other food materials. USA will see some increased competition for paddy sales to Mexico specially from Uruguay rice. Brazil has also reduced their tariffs by an additional 10 percent through the end of 2023, thus bringing the tariff for milled rice down to 9.6 percent and rough rice down to 8 percent.
- As the wheat stocks are decreasing in Bangladesh, the lowest in three years, consumers are likely to switch to rice, which will put a serious pressure on the price of rice. Bangladesh now has only 1 LMT of wheat in stock, which is about one-third of that in the same period last year.
- In Telangana, the procurement of paddy has slowed down due to lack of space availability in mills. The government proposed to open 6,808 paddy procurement centres (PPC) across the State out of which only 6,512 were opened as on May 20, while 345 were already closed as the procurement was over in some places.
- Currently Indian basmati rice is getting a premium of $20-30 (₹1,550-2,330) per tonne from the Middle East countries. There are also rumors in the market that India may put a ban on exports to cool local inflation. Exporters have received communication from buyers to urgently ship the aromatic, long-grain rice. A firm price trend in global markets has pushed up domestic basmati prices by up to 15% in the last two weeks. The export price of basmati rice, which was $1200 in the beginning of November rose to $1350 since last two weeks.
- Kuwait is trying to make export deals with Pakistan for the rice. Though currently, Kuwait's rice stock is sufficient for one year but they are trying to increase the rice stocks.
- Currently non-basmati market is seeing a bullish tone in trade where traders felt a 2% increase in FOB prices in the near term. There is a bullish sentiment which is backed by the availability of logistics (railway rakes) followed by improvement in vessel availability at Kakinada and Kandla for major destinations.
- AMIS has reported global production at 520 MMT and overall supply at 711 MMT.
