

Sugar & Gur Domestic & International FundamentalsRecent Update:

Indian Sugar market showed mixed trend compared to previous day across India. Overall the prices are expected to be steady to low due to lower demand and the effects of coronavirus spread in India. Khatauli sugar market was closed low at Rs.3250/q while the prices in Kolhapur market prices stood at Rs.3150/q.

The coronavirus became pandemic and the sugar industry is also likely to be affected like all the other commodities. Global sugar prices crashed and Sugar futures market fallen to 11.7cents/lb from 13.89cents/lbs on Friday down by around 15% within 10 days, making exports unattractive for Indian mills, as selling in the domestic market is now more profitable. And no new export transactions are taking place in the Indian market. The necessary precautions that are being taken by the government to avoid spreading is going to affect the sugar consumption. Because people are avoiding consuming cold drinks, ice creams and other products. Thus, everyone is waiting for the change in climate and temperature to rise so that the situation to be under controlled.

Weather Forecast:

During the next 24 hours, we expect thunderstorm activities in Odisha, West Bengal, and Jharkhand. East Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh, and eastern Uttar Pradesh may also see rain at one or two places. Rain activities are now increasing in the north eastern states. Moderate to heavy rains may occur in Assam, Meghalaya and Arunachal Pradesh. Sikkim and Sub-Himalayan West Bengal are also expected to receive good rainfall at some places.
