

Domestic Fundamentals:

- Edible oils featured mixed tone in various market centers on Saturday.
- Domestic soy oil and palm oil futures rose on expectation of firm demand. International palm oil futures rose on expectation of fall in production of palm oil in Malaysia. MPOB report showed that production of palm oil unexpectedly fell in Nov which weighed on its prices. CBOT soy oil fell on oversupply concerns and weak demand of soybean from China amid surging global supplies. Crude oil prices were trading higher on Friday.
- Imports of edible oil slowed in November due to continuous fall in prices of edible oils due to oversupply scenario. Further, currency volatility led postponement of demand. Refiners were stuck with stocks of oil purchased at higher rates. Many refiners were facing tough financing situation due to NPA issues in Indian banking sector. Payment problem were there due to steady fall in prices of all oils. Going ahead imports demand will pick up due to bottoming out of prices of edible oils. However, there will not be any immediate surge in imports of edible oils. Port stocks have fallen for last three months especially soft oils. So there could be buying in soft oils whose stocks at ports have fallen. However, palm oil stocks continue to be high.
