- Agriwatch View- Soy oil prices witnessed uptrend during the week on firm demand.

Prices of soy oil rose despite fall in prices of soybean.

Soy oil CNF remained stable while domestic soy oil prices firmed indicating firm demand. Demand is weak on CNF markets while firm in domestic markets. Soy oil –Indore remains less affected by CNF prices at India West coast indicating firm demand.

Indian soy oil prices are disconnected from international prices of soy oil and are dependent on domestic markets.

There is limited supply of soybean in the market.

Basis has fallen from last week indicating less sensitivity of domestic CNF prices from global benchmark prices. Weak demand in India CNF and improving supply situation exporting markets have decreased basis.

Disparity has decreased at high seas and refining margins are in disparity. However, with low difference between soy oil premium over palm oil, demand is expected to improve in coming months. Demand is expected to improve on stocking ahead of festivals after monsoon.

Prices of soy oil expected to improve on low premium of soy oil over palm oil at Rs 70 (Rs 72 last week) per 10 Kg. Weak refining margins may slow imports. In USD terms, premium of soy oil over palm oil is low and was USD 48 (USD 48 last week) which will increase imports.

Prices of soy oil are in a range with upward bias.

- In the USDA – FAS grain report, the US attaché has projected India's 2016/17 soybean production at 11.5 million tons up from its previous forecast of 11 million tons. Agriwatch view – Soybean crop condition is very good in US as reported by USDA in its latest crop report last week. Pro Farmer crop survey has reported higher yields compared to USDA August estimates. Many independent agencies including Informa have increased yields indicating that USDA will increase yields in its September estimate. Higher crop will underpin prices in medium term.

Imports from China has weakened in August from US but will improve in September as it has placed orders and is expected to place more orders in near term indicating higher demand.

USDA reported lower soy oil (crude and refined) stocks in US in July on lower production of soy oil due to lower crush. Fall in stocks reported by USDA is higher than NOPA. Both agencies have reported lower stocks of soy oil in US which will support prices in near term. Soy oil stocks are expected to fall further in August on lower crush of soybean, which will lead to lower production of soy oil and lower stocks of soy oil. Crushers are not crushing soybean as old crop supplies are weak and they are waiting for prices of soybean to come down. Lower crush will decrease soy oil stocks of US.

USDA reduced 2016/17 soy oil ending stocks of US in its August estimate by lowering opening stocks partially offset by higher soy oil production due to higher soybean crush. Soy oil end stocks of 2015/16 were also lowered.

USDA increased soy oil end stocks of Argentina in 2016/17 on lower exports of soy oil, which led to higher end stocks of soy oil, which will keep prices of Argentina lower than previously estimated.

Rise in crude oil prices and weakness in dollar on expectation of delayed FED rate hike will support prices in near term.

Prices of soy oil are in a range.
